T*His Work was brought out of Turkie by the Chaus or Turkish Ambassadour that arrived on the Germane coasts ; who oftentimes with his Consorts and Comrades , as namely Turks and Saracens, sported in it. The same was left among the Germans ; and many of them , together with Doctor Starzern that came out of Turkie, caused it to be seen and plaid. It was translated out of the Turkish into the Germane Language by a Germane Patriot ; and, at the request of a noble Madame and chief Lady in the Bratter on the river of Danubie, A.S.L.L. of D. and her most noble Daughter, there offered, communicated and delivered with all humility and obedience.*

Now the Turks (say they) have it of the Ægyptians and other ancient Heathen Philosophers,

TO the READER.

losophers, which have described the same out of their natural Magick. They esteemed the same very much: hence many of them do yet imitate it; and hold it not, as we do, for a jest and sport, especially chief men in Banquets, and amongst Ladies, but for a very truth: and there may well be something in it. Of the like matters much is mentioned here and there by divers Authors, as Doctor Robert Fludd writes of the like at large. And thus it is not to be taken for a juggling, as if it came from Ægyptians and Jugglers, much less for a Witchcraft or Black-Art, as Ignorants and Idiots usually understand it. Vale.

An Instruction and Information how to finde out the Resolution and Answers upon the Questions mentioned in this ensuing Book, &c.

TAke one of these after-written Questions; as for Example, this Question, Whether you shall get her or not, whom you do love; noted with this Character X O, thereby you shall finde the number 24, which sheweth thee to the 24 Wheel: hold this Wheel before you; then cast you, or let him who desireth to know the Question, throw with two Dice a free cast out of his hand: mark then how much you threw that cast with both the Dice; as, 5, 6, 7, 8; or 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11, 12: then finde out the number you did throw, within the said Wheel: As for Example, your cast were 6; then you shall finde thereby written within the Wheel this word Fountain; but without the Wheel, upon the brim or margent, directly over against the word Fountain, you shall finde this number 64. This sheweth you then further to the lesser Globes or Balls. Look then for the 64 Globe, over which you will finde written this word Fountain, noting to be the Fountain-Globe: Within the Globe it self is written Nymphæ, under it this number 98. This leadeth you then yet further to the hindermost written number 98, under the title of Nymphæ, where you in the number of 6, which was your cast, shall finde the Resolution and Answer upon your Question.

B

You

Instructions for the READER.

You may also finde an Answer or Resolution upon the same Wheel, if you throw 12 upon both Dice; look then for the number 12 in the same Wheel, whereby you shall finde written Worms; this signifieth so much unto you, that you shall go from this Wheel to the lesser Globes, and there to look for the Worm-Globe, which is in number the 70. Within is written J A S O N; under it, this number 92; which sheweth you further, where you, under the title of J A S O N, and number 92, shall finde your cast, which was 12, and the resolution upon your Question.

*Now follow the Heads or Questions in general,

Vulcanus. 73.

2 THe sick in danger great doth lie
Of this same present maladie :
The former health which now is fled,
Will hardly be recovered.

3 Of any thing which thou canst keep,
To raise thy fortunes, will be cheap :
Thou canst not have a better thing,
Which will to thee more profit bring.

4 Take heed ; for if thy secret be
Made known to persons two or three,
It will no longer be conceal'd,
But unto many be reveal'd.

5 To die a maid you need not fear ;
For many children you shall bear ;
Tis three to one, ere you do wed,
You shall have lost your maidenhead.

6 Thou art to have, by destinie,
Some score of husbands ere thou die :
By which thou mayst assured be,
The first will never bury thee.

7 A merry man, and diligent,
According to thy hearts content,
Will be to thee a husband kinde,
If thou canst get him in the minde.

8 So many suiters you have now,
That very well you do not know
Which amongst them for to take,
For who you should your husband make.

9 If that thou shew thy self unkinde,
When thou wouldst have him in the minde,
His heart will be against thee set,
That thou no more his love shalt get.

10 His love is greater unto thee,
Then ever thine to him will be :
And if his love should now decline,
The fault is none of his, but thine.

11 You do not learned men disdain,
But rather seek thereby to gain
Their labours, or to be their mate :
You do not bear them inward hate.

12 Friend, to be short, and end the strife,
Thou must and shalt have but one wife :
Make much and cherish her therefore ;
For when she's dead, thou getst no more.

Luna.

Luna. 74.

2 In this it seemeth unto me,
Nothing but very truth to be :
Then 'twere a shame for to deny
That truth it self doth iustifie.

3 By this it may be iustly prov'd,
Of many you are well belov'd :
For, go into what place you will,
Your company is welcome still.

4 You need not for to stand in doubt ;
This labour which you are about,
It will not onely profit hang,
But credit from the same shall spring.

5 This journey is not like to be
So prosperous in each degree :
See that thou keep all things in frame,
To shun the danger of the same.

6 If that no hinderance by the way
Doth cause this person for to stay,
He shortly will come back again,
In health amongst you to remain.

7 The time is dangerous indeed,
To some in whom diseases breed ;
And goeth very hard with such
As troubled are with sickness much.

8 A Pigeon-merchant right you are ;
Your wealth comes flying in from far :
Be sure that once a month, at least,
Your goods are like to be increas'd.

9 If thou wilt quiet live, thou must
Not many of thy secrets trust
To women : for they will by kinde
Reveal what ere comes in their minde.

10 A Many children thou shalt have,
Which death will halten to their grave :
For whether they be weak or strong,
Not any of them will live long.

11 You are further like still to remain,
Before a husband you shall gain :
Then of your carriage have a care,
For fear lest none fall to your share.

12 It is allotted unto thee,
A spend-thrift shall thy husband be :
Then be thy portion great or small,
Wise some, or else he'll spend it all.

Sol.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Sol. 75.

2 Go on thy way with merry cheer ;
Thou needst no dangers for to fear :
For why : this journey now by thee
Shall happily performed be.

3 This person no long time will stay,
When once he is set on his way ;
But quickly will come home to tell
What in the way to him befel.

4 The sick will linger long in pain,
Before that they be well again :
Yet very like they'll scape at last,
Though they recover not in haste.

5 Thou poultry thou hast good luck ;
For both the Hen, the Goose, and Duck,
Will all of them increase thy store,
And keep thee up, from growing poor.

6 Thou a good friend, I dare to say,
Thy secret thou discover may,
And by the same mayst comfort finde,
To set at rest a troubled minde.

7 Thou shalt have many children, which
In thy conceit may make thee rich ;
They will of good condition be,
And in thy age will honour thee.

8 Your destinie is but to have
One husband : for I do perceive
Your qualities to be so ill,
That when he dies, none other will.

9 Your husband will be very old,
Of feature grim, and nature cold ;
With rotten teeth, and stinking breath,
That thou each day wilt wish his death.

10 She is a very faithless one ;
For vertue in her there is none :
Then take her not to be thy wife,
For fear of breeding after strife.

11 You'll get him yet, I'll undertake,
If 'twere but for your beauties sake :
Your liberalities likewise,
The true loves-knot more firmly ties.

12 The truth it is, he loved thee
As dogs and cats use to agree :
But if he bite, be sure thou scratch ;
There's no love lost in such a match.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Neptunus. 76.

This party will not much rejoyce
To see thee, nor to hear thy voice :
For if your coming be to stay,
They'd rather wisht you'd staid away.

3 Go forwards with your business ;
In it you shall have good success :
Whilst fortune now on thee doth smile,
Waste thou no time in the mean while.

4 This party, I am confident,
Is come not for to have content :
It is some other ways inclin'd,
As you by proof may after finde.

5 I boldly dare encourage thee,
Your journey prosperous will be,
Which now you are about to go :
You need not fear ; it shall be so.

6 Upto the sick that is not well,
This to their comfort I do tell,
They shall not linger long in pain,
But shall recover soon again.

7 If thou wouldst the horse-courser play,
So that thou take them brown or bay :
White jades have many a scurvie trick,
And dapple-gray will bite and kick.

8 Your secrets you disclose too much,
And do reveal them unto such
As you do take to be your friends,
Which no such love to you pretends.

9 It is like you'll have children store,
Some of them boys, but of girls more :
Thus Cupid's School is more upheld,
Then forces rais'd for Mars his field.

10 Thou shalt have but one husband, which
Will be to thee as old as rich :
And as he is to have long life,
He will prove crabbed to his wife.

11 A merry young man, I well perceive,
Unto thy husband thou shalt have :
Therefore of him be not afraid,
Though's teeth be longer then his beard.

12 If thou in Marriage dost proceed,
A brave and lustie man indeed
Unto thy husband thou wilt get ;
The worst, perhaps he'll prove in debt.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Hymenus. 77.

2 This counsel cannot be so good,
If rightly it be understood:
Then change it quickly, if you can,
And learn some of another man.

3 This person meaneth you no wrong,
Therefore see that you keep her long:
For it is very hard to finde
One that shall be so well inclinde.

4 Your fortunes will be very good
For fishing on the Drean-flood:
So if thou wilt a fisher be,
The Water-nymphs will smile on thee.

5 This person is both true and just;
In her thou well mayst put thy trust:
Her dealings are upright and plain;
No falsehood in her doth remain.

6 Put not thy confidence in this:
All is not true that spoken is:
For when as time the truth shall try,
'Tis doubtful this may prove a ly.

7 You are right workeine, I dare say,
If that too long you be not stay:
Therefore it is good for to make haste,
For fear your labour prove in waste.

8 If you a good beginning make,
Of thy business you do undertake,
And that you go on forwards still,
The end thereof will not be ill.

9 The danger it was very great,
This journey unto you did threat:
'Tis good to learn how to prevent
The harms may fall by accident.

10 This party which to travel's gone,
The way that he is bent upon,
When many weary step is spent,
He'll hardly come home as he went.

11 No doubt this party at its pain,
Will in short time be well again.
Such fits as these are incident,
As Summer agues are in Kent.

12 If Horles trassick his and thum,
Lest that by them thou beest undone:
The Staggers and the Farce will,
With Glanders, many of them kill.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Parca. 78.

2 This childe will very healthful be ;
It many happie days shall see :
And very like, before it die,
Will raise it self to honours hie,

3 The husband is of no long life ;
For he will die before the wife :
A widow she'll not long remain,
But after married be again.

4 It is a counsel good indeed,
Therefore to it do thou give heed ;
And follow it : for thou shalt see
No hurt thereby to thee will be.

5 This party loves thee very well ;
There's no deceit in it both dwell :
Its heart is from all falshood free ;
No harm at all it wisheth thee.

6 Thy luck is best in fire and Pettles,
To melt and cast Bells, Pots, or Battles :
For therein lie thy chiefest gains,
If thou wilt work and take such pains.

7 This party is not good to trust ;
For very like it is unjust :
Yet if thou dost, and chance to rue,
Say afterwards I told thee true.

8 All is not truth that now is spoke ;
And if that lying would but choke
The party which the same doth tell,
Lying would not be lov'd so well.

9 Thy self alone shalt welcome be,
So that thou bringst no guests with thee :
But if thou dost, I am afraid
They'll wish you all away had staid.

10 What you are purpos'd now about,
You need not so to stand in doubt
But it will have a good effect,
If you do not the same neglect.

11 Thy journey dangerous will be,
And most unhappy unto thee :
If in the same thou dost proceed,
It's good for thee to take great heed.

12 He who to travel far is gone,
If sickness let him but alone,
And cross him not of his intent,
He homeward now again is bent.

Jupiter.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Jupiter. 79.

2 Is a very cunning youth,
That seems to mean but little truth;
Take heed lest he should you deceive,
And say that I you counsel give.

3 All is not spoken as it is
According to the truth of this:
I'll sooner say it is a lye,
Then stand the same to justify.

4 Most lovingly they will receive you,
But yet indeed they would not have you
There amongst them long to stay,
But wish you were soon gone away.

5 If you be diligent in this,
Your labour will not go amiss:
Your business shall have a good end,
And you no time in vain shall spend.

6 This journey very good will be,
And profitable unto thee:
Therefore go out with merry cheer;
The truth of this thou needst not fear.

7 This person, after he hath had Great damage and misfortune (bad)
And thereby having cause to mourn,
He home again will then return.

8 This party it will overcome
This sickness yet; before the tomb
Doth it within the earth infold,
It shall more days in health behold.

9 Breeding of Hogs is such a thing,
As special luck to you will bring:
Wash, Bran, or Grains, they feed on all,
So that which from your wives back-side doth fall.

10 You may disclose your business
Unto your friend: but nevertheless
It's good for you to take good heed;
But be sure he be your friend indeed.

11 These children I perceive are such
As will not put you very much
To trouble: therefore be content,
And think to you they are but lent.

12 One husband you are like to have,
Who will content you, I perceive:
He will for you so well provide,
That by him you'll be satisfied.

2 HE who to travel now is gone,
There's very little hopes, or none,
That ere he will come home again,
But will in absence still remain.

3 Although the sick may seem to lie
In danger, yet it will not die,
But will recover of its pain,
And have their former health again.

4 All sorts of wild beasts into the
Will oftentimes most harmful be:
Yet if thou wouldst these dangers scape,
Do not so much as view an Ape.

5 Your secrets do not you disclose
To any, be they friends or foes:
Except that need doth say thou must,
I would not any of them trust.

6 I can resolve thee that thy charge
Of children will not be too large:
For they shall be in number few,
Yet thou shalt have thy nightly due.

7 Take heed how you your choice do make;
You have but one husband to take:
Therefore see that you have a care,
To get a good one to your share.

8 A clownish bawd you must have
Unto your husband, I perceive:
If that you will take care to spin,
He'll every night come t'elling in.

9 This man is not so bad, I see,
As you imagine him to be:
Therefore you'd better with him marry,
Then worse to spend, and longer carry.

10 Because you are too grains too light,
Your doctor's pots him in a fright:
Therefore he hath but little wine
To you that are that way incline.

11 He meaneth truly for his part,
And loves you too with all his heart:
Therefore be constant to him still,
That bears to thee so much good will.

12 You are most welcome, as 'tis thought,
To all people that are base and sought,
Which never for their liding sought,
Nor after any goodness sought.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Castori. 81.

2 Tell you truly, and be plain;
You'll hardly get these things again:
Then whether they were stoin or lost,
Bid farewell so much as they cost.

3 Upto this childe, I do perceiue,
It is ordain'd long life to haue;
And shall be rich before it dies,
And also unto honour rise.

4 Would you haue me to certifie
Which of the two the first shall die?
The husband hath the shorter life;
For he will die before the wife.

5 This counsel it is not so bad
As you perhaps suppos'd it had:
For if you rightly do perceiue it,
You'll take them for your friend that gave it.

6 This party's not so good indeed,
Therefore I wish thee to take heed,
And haue a care that thou no whit
Do put thy confidence in it.

7 You haue good luck at such times, when
As you converse with learned men,
And such as to the Church belong,
With thee it seldom happens wrong.

8 It is not good to trust this man
With any thing: for if he can
In private do thee any ill,
'Tis very like that so he will.

9 It is not all the truth that's said;
Therefore if I might you perswade,
You should not trust the laws: for looke
The great est part thereof's a lye.

10 As thou shalt profitable be,
Hereafter they'll accept of thee:
But if thou nothing dost deserve,
They would not care though thou shouldst starue.

11 This is to let you understand
That you had better take in hand
Some other work: for looke, in sooth
You'll hardly well in this proceed.

12 This journey you must so maintain;
It will be nothing to your gain:
Yet thou perforce must be content,
Though thou return worse then thou went.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Apollo. 82.

- 2 This person you need not to fear ;
He doth no envie to you bear :
You may with such communicate ;
For he to you doth bear no hate.
- 3 You shall have special luck in ground,
Amongst mynes where treasure most is found:
In changing money also, you
Thereby will finde great profit too.
- 4 Do not this party trust : for why ?
'Tis very false, I'll iustifie :
The best that doth from such proceed,
Doth nothing but contention breed.
- 5 Some that is spoken, I confesse,
It may be true : but ne'ertheless
'Tis good to try before you trust :
For all, I cannot say, is iust.
- 3 Thou shalt be loved very well
Of those which neer to thee do dwell :
And strangers, when they thee do know,
Will bear good-will to thee also.
- 7 If thou striv'st to be diligent,
And labour'st for to give content,
Whereafter thou shalt be regarded,
And for thy labour be rewarded.
- 8 In this same journey I advise
Thee for to be careful and wise :
That thou the dangers may'st prevent,
Which may fall out by accident.
- 9 This party will not long time be Away : for shortly you shall see
It happily return again,
Whose labour hath not been in vain.
- 10 The danger of the sick is such,
That it is to be feared much :
It will not overcome this pain,
But die before it mends again.
- 11 You have good luck for to converse
With Priests : and if you can rehearse
How oft you sin'd, I can resolve you,
We'll tell you that he can absolve you.
- 12 It's good for thee, I do suppose,
That thou shouldst unto him disclose
The business you are about ;
It will be for the best, no doubt.

Saturnus.

2 There's special luck belongs to you,
With Marriage and by heirship too :
Thus shalt thou unto riches rise,
Yet do not thou the pooz despise.

3 This party unto you doth bear
An honest minde, you need not fear :
Its meaning is upright and true,
In all respects still towards you.

4 Somewhat is true, but yet not all ;
Then let thy confidence be small ;
Put not thy trust too much in this,
Nor seek for truth where falsehood is,

5 Because you are so much inclinde
To hear so wavering a minde,
There is not any will respect you,
Nor for your labours yet affect you.

6 If that you do not understand
This work, then do not take 't in hand :
You'd better let it now alone,
Then wish (too late) you had done none.

7 This journey goeth well with thee,
As thou wouldst wish it for to be,
According to thy hearts desire :
What wouldst thou any more require ?

8 This person will come home at last,
When time a little more is past :
Her body dangerously will swell,
Of that disease her self will tell.

9 Despise not Physick, though there be
But small hopes of recovery :
And little hurts cause sorrow much,
When greater are not cause of such.

10 You may wade up in health to thy knees.
You have such luck to Ducks and Geese ;
Which well will prosper and increase,
Keep but the Fox and them at peace.

11 Tis good for thee to have a care,
And of this person to beware :
Do not thy secret with her trust ;
For she to thee will prove unjust.

12 There is a certain number set,
How many children thou shalt get :
Two is the most that they will be ;
Th'art never like to make them three.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Gratia. 84.

2 Betwixt the husband and the wife,
The female hath the longer life :
But afterwards, when he is dead,
She'll be too old again to wed.

3 Follow this counsel : for I see
It will be very good for thee :
Therefore I hold thee much to blame;
If that thou dost not take the same.

4 This party meaneth thee no ill,
Therefore accept of that good will
Which it to thee doth seem to bear ;
No harm thereby thou needst to fear.

5 If hunting you have special luck :
For hardly either Hare or Buck
Will ever scape your Dog or you :
Sometimes beware the Conies too.

6 To doubt this man thou hast no need ;
For he right constant is indeed :
In him thou well mayst put thy trust ;
His meaning towards thee is just.

7 If this you may your selves persuade,
Such of it's very true that's said :
Those that are speakers of the same,
They need not with the truth to shame.

8 You are very welcome, if some thing
That's good, along with you you bring :
But if you chance to come without,
So welcome you'll not be, I doubt.

9 Iwould have you to interst and,
The work which you have took in hand,
Th' effect thereof will be but small ;
It will not finish be at all.

10 Your journey a good end will have,
As you your self would wish or crave :
It happily shall finish be,
As you would it desire to see.

11 The person who to travel's gone,
When he'll return it is unknown :
To look for him, ye time but waste ;
He will not come again in haste.

12 Be patient, though thou art not well ;
For this same sickness, I can tell,
It will not very long endure,
Whereof that time shall work the cure.

Pollux.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Pollux. 85.

2 Thou shalt live to be very old,
And many happie days behold :
Thou quickly wilt be rich likewise,
And also unto honour rise.

3 All toil and labour is but vain ;
For you will get nothing again :
You had as good let all alone,
As strive in vain, for that is gone.

4 God understanding it will have,
But no long life, I do perceive :
Therefore I say, If you be wise,
Take much of it before it dies.

5 What would you know assuredly,
Which of the two the first will die ?
To tell you plain, and end all strife,
The husband lives to bury's wife.

6 This counsel it may well be ghest,
For that it will not prove the best :
Therefore it's better thou refuse it,
Then to repent if once thou use it.

7 This party it doth wish you well,
And therefore this I can you tell,
It is not any way unjust,
But you in it may put your trust.

8 You have good luck with Merchandise,
And in all sorts of Arts likewise :
Whate'er thou take in hand or tries,
The profit from the same will rise.

9 This person is a cunning one ;
If hurt by her thou wouldst have none,
Then do not trust her, though thou know her,
No farther then thou well canst throw her.

10 Something is true the which is said,
But yet I would no further wade
To justify, except I knew
That all the rest besides was true.

11 Cen, you need not for to fear,
But that you shall be welcome there ;
And thou some kindness wilt perceive,
If well thy self thou dost behave.

12 Thy purpose nothing forward goes,
But backwards, as I do suppose :
Thy time about it thou mayst spend,
But hardly bying it to an end.

Pluto. 86.

2 Y Du're long about this work, I see :
Except you could moze quicker be,
I would have you to understand,
You get but little by the hand.

3 This journey it doth threaten thee,
As if it would much hurtful be :
Therefore 'tis good thou shouldst take heed,
If to the end thou wouldst proceed.

4 Not like to one that looketh sad,
For any cause of mourning had,
This person will return again,
But in a very pleasant vain.

5 The sick will not endure long pain,
But quickly shall be well again ;
Therefore I say, Be of good chear ;
Death at this time you need not fear.

6 If Dren thou dost buy or sell,
Th'art like to raise thy fortunes well :
Thy careful wife, I'm sure, she scorns
That thou shouldst fail for want of horns.

7 If you of help stand in no need,
But in all things do well proceed,
Yet be you silent ; for you may
Have need of help another day.

8 If our conjecture rightly fall.
Be confident in this, you shall
Have lesser store of girls then boys,
Which may the moze increase your joys.

9 You shall two husbands have, fair maid ;
Chear up your heart, be not afraid ;
But this observe above the rest,
That of the two, the last is best.

10 Vhen you in love go thorow stritch,
Indeed your husband shall be rich :
Yet fortune thus your joy allays,
With him you shall see no good days.

11 IPrethee maiden hobe a care,
And seek in time to shun the snare :
His love seems true by th' outward part,
But there's great oddes 'twixt tongue and heart.

12 Be circumspect, I thee advise,
And of my counsel highly prise :
For thou art like (by Nature's course)
To have misfortune by a Horse.

Venus.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Venus. 87.

2 When thou hast past thy worldly cares,
Then on thy bed, with fervent prayers,
Everlasting peace, for fading strife,
Thou shalt exchange, and end thy life.

3 Not short nor long thy life shall be ;
For thus the fates do promise thee ;
Sometimes in joy, sometimes in pain.
Thou shalt t' a middle age attain,

4 Fear not, my friend, be patient yet,
And do not madly foam nor fret :
For he who took the things away,
Will, his own self, himself betray.

5 This bashful childe is born to good ;
By blushing it shews graceful blood ;
And in this world it shall so thrive,
That to great credit 'twill arrive.

6 Think on no second Marriage-bed ;
Your husband is already dead :
Prepare your self ; for you his wife
Shall quickly after leave this life.

7 This counsel is not worth a fly ;
'Tis full of childish foppery :
Therefore be careful if thou can,
Seek counsel of a prudent man.

8 He loves you well, be sure of that,
If you despise not, you know what.
And I by rules have understood
That 'tis firm love, and very good.

9 Now be you careful every way,
Take time of thriving while you may :
Believe and take this truth from me,
Your luck's in farms and Husbandry.

10 Be not deceived over-soon,
For fear you judge beyond the Moon :
But for a truth thus much thou learnest,
The party means well in good earnest.

11 Upon reports some doubts ensue,
Whether the thing be false or true :
But in this matter you are freed ;
What hath been said, is true indeed.

12 Tell, never fear ; for you ere long
Shall gain your wishes by your tongue :
Your words proceed from such deep sense,
They'll have you for your eloquence.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Tyresias. 88.

2 BE careful to avoid debate ;
For of this dream I calculate,
That it doth rightly signifie
Some in-bred hate, or enmitie.

3 Thou mayst in this life have good days ;
But be advis'd in all thy ways :
For I am doubtful (my good friend)
Thou wilt not make an happie end.

4 A Happie and auspicious lot
Is thine, if thou prevent it not :
Long shalt thou live (mark what I tell)
And every one shall love thee well.

5 Friend, in this case I do desire ye,
Be diligent, and make enquirie ;
And through your wisdom and your care,
You'll get it again ere you be 'ware.

6 This childe is lustie, stout, and strong,
And very likely to live long :
If Nature do her promise hold,
He'll live till he be very old.

7 BE sure of this, and do not doubt,
We all must die, though ne'er so stout :
And thus I probably surmise,
The wife before her husband dies.

8 Stand not consulting, but make haste ;
Wrong not your self ; the time's soon past :
The counsel's very good indeed,
If it be followed with speed.

9 BE wise : for if you take not care,
You'll be entangled in a snare :
This man, as fowlers watch for Birds,
Doth wait to catch you in your words.

10 If you be wise, you may attain
Unto good store of worldly gain :
From several projects you may draw
Much wealth, and from affairs o' th' Law.

11 This party meaneth well at th' first,
And seems all good : but here's the worst ;
He is not constant in 's intent,
But falls from what at th' first he meant.

12 BE not too credulous, my friend,
Lest you repent it in the end :
Thus much my counsel may perswade.
All is not true that hath been said.

Hercules.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Hercules. 89.

2 BE confident in this; do not
Distrust what's twixtten here, each sot :
What you do think in verity,
I will come to pass immediately.

3 Dreams are but fables, as 'tis said,
Yet from some dreams is truth betwixt :
But now I'll speak i'th' vulgar sence,
This dream is of no consequence.

4 A Happie life like end begets ;
And when your sun of Nature sets,
Having done good (while you had breath)
Full many will lament your death.

5 BE not dismayd, nor take affright,
Although your fortune be but slight :
Live honestly, and do no wrong ;
For certainly you'll not live long.

6 Here may some difficulty arise,
Yet be content, let this suffice :
If the things be not gone too far,
You'll have them all, just as they are.

7 Let not the parents their hearts break
With grief : for though the child be weak,
I will prove a pretty prattling ape,
And many sicknesses escape.

8 Tis probable what here you finde,
Such chance blinde Fortune hath assign'd :
The shirt is weaker then the smock,
And this Hen will out-live her Cock.

9 Though this advice perhaps may serve,
Yet lest thou shouldst from wisdom swerve,
Ask others counsel what they say ;
If one won't serve, another may.

10 You may perchance mistrust the party,
And think all sayings are not hearty ;
But learn by me to censure duly,
The party meaneth just and truly.

11 Auspicious luck you may expect,
If you your courses well direct ;
The conversation of great Lords,
To you no little gain affords.

12 It is a saying worth the learning,
Take heed in all things, is fair warning ;
If this be true (as 'tis indeed)
Then of this party take great heed.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Serpentina, or Proserpina. 90.

- 2 BE careful how thou chuse a wife;
Whoe'er thou tak'st, lasts all thy life:
Then chuse one good (whate'er befall)
For thou shalt have but one in all.
- 3 A Las, poor man, I pity thee;
But now 'tis grown past remedie:
Thou art so far enamour'd on her,
That now thou hast no way to shun her.
- 4 IW' sorry for thee, honest lad;
For thou shalt have one very bad:
For scold, nor whore, but one far worse,
A quean that will drink dry thy purse.
- 5 VDurst thou be wed? I know thou wouldst;
But it is requisite thou shouldst
First know her. Wonder my conceit:
Perhaps, she's not each way compleat.
- 6 Though she be coy, do not despair;
She loves thee well, take thou no care:
But yet she hath a minde to see Whether that thou wilt constant be.
- 7 Your gesture being rude and ill,
Like will to like; believe it still:
And you'll to none so welcome be,
As to Menereal company.
- 8 BE circumspect this day (my friend)
If to your self you good intend:
For sure it may be understood,
That he intendeth you no good.
- 9 Here is preferment profer'd you;
But give me leave to say what's true:
You being one that's a mad shaver,
May be preferr'd by womens savor.
- 10 Friend, have a care, and wisely shun
The danger whereto thou maist run,
If thou dost not heedfully
Look unto this company.
- 11 You may obtain the business well,
If you take notice what I tell:
If you rightly go about it,
Or else y'are like to go without it.
- 12 You think upon a thing, which, yet,
It is not possible to get:
Therefore do not your self beguile;
For 'twill not be as yet-a-while.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Ceres. 91.

2 BE wise (sweet heart) do to what you can
To win his love : he's a brave man :
And if you do go thorow stich,
(Betwixen you) you'll grow very rich.

3 HE is a young man very fresh,
And saxes p'are given to the flesh ;
Therefore he hath no minde to you :
Do not deny't ; for this is true.

4 Sweet heart, if you would win his minde,
You must not copye saxon kinde :
You are to him so maiden-like,
That Cupid hath no will to strike.

5 Young men will not accept you much,
Your condition it is such :
Yet here's a help for you agen ;
You shall be welcome to old men.

6 BE not too hastie yet to marry ;
Let me advise thee still to tarry :
When e'er thou wedst, thou'lt live in strife ;
Then keep thy self without a wife.

7 Go on, and prosper with success
In Marriage : if you do possess
Each other, this believe for certain,
You shall attain to happy fortune.

8 Thou needst not care though long thou stay ;
Thy wedding is no happy day :
A prating gossip thou shalt wed,
When once thou with a wife art sped.

9 Thou canst intimate very well,
And in her favour hop'it to dwell :
But yet (my friend) I tell thee plain,
That all thy labour is in vain.

10 Is pity love should not love win ;
And pity 'tis you did begin
To woo this lass : for this is true,
You love not her as she loves you.

11 Thou art so proud and insolent,
Thou wilt no company frequent ;
Therefore this is thy just reward,
That no-body doth thee regard.

12 BE careful, and mark what I say,
Have special minde upon this day,
Lest you your negligence do rue ;
For this day bodes no good to you.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Jason. 92.

2 Great pitie 'tis that Satures art
Hath done so much upon her part,
To make thee fruitful : for 'twill prove,
Thou'lt have more children then thou'lt live.

3 Fear not, sweet heart, all shall go well ;
You never shall lead apes, in hell :
For you of husbands shall have store ;
Which at the least, it may be more.

4 Damuel, applaud the happie fate ;
For thou shalt wed a happie mate :
Thus much of him I do promise,
He will be thifty in's best age.

5 Be not afraid of him, sweet heart ;
For 'tis not fit you two should part :
Part him once, and you shall see
What a happie match 'twill be.

6 Thou thinkst this man doth hate thee much ;
We say that thy thought is such :
For he no malice bears to thee :
Make trial on't, and thou shalt see.

7 Stride not against the stream of Love,
For take more pains then doth behove :
For I must tell thee, Dopes are small ;
Pay more, it will not be at all.

8 Both young and old do thee respect ;
Thy company all do affect,
By reason of thy modestie :
Continue that until thou die.

9 Widower, mark these certain words,
Another wife thy fate affords :
But you shall never well agree,
By reason of her jealousy.

10 Thy self a pot-companion art,
And wantest one to take thy part :
A drunken wife then thou shalt have ;
A drunken quean t'a drunken knave.

11 She whom thou take'lt for better, for worse,
Is handsome, but she'll strain thy purse :
She's seeming holy, and demure ;
Then keep her tenderly, be sure.

12 This Fortune seems preposterous,
And yet (in troth) 'tis certain thus :
Though she's enamour'd much on thee,
Thou ne'er shalt have her, take't from me.

Fortuna.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Fortuna. 93.

2 WEr't not for hope, the heart would break;
This (by experience) we may speak:
For thy hope to thy company is much,
But the profit is nothing such.

3 You to your wishes may arrive,
If diligently you do strive:
But let me tell you this withal,
Your honey will be mist with gall.

4 Do not despair, nor yet presume;
For it may, and, it may not come:
Your expectation short will fall;
I will partly happen, but not all.

5 Prepare your self to entertain
A guest, whom (I must tell you plain)
You did not look this day to see:
When't comes to pass, remember me.

6 Look to your best life: as for this,
In it you shall have earthly bliss:
You'll die through thirst, and good behaviour,
With riches, and all peoples favour.

7 A happy life I do presage;
For you shall live unto old age:
Great honour for you is allow'd,
And quickly too; yet be not proud.

8 Either the things that you have lost,
Shall come again to you in post,
Or if you do n't them soon obtain,
Nay not, for they'll ne'er come again.

9 Let not the Parents take to heart,
If from their childe they soon depart:
For I can shew you reasons strong,
To prove this childe cannot live long.

10 Look for no second Marriage-bed,
(Good wife) your destiny is read:
Chuse you whether you'll laugh or crie,
You must, before your husband, die.

11 Hearken not to that advice,
If of thy welfare thou be nice:
For when 'tis rightly understood,
Then't finde the counsel is not good.

12 Be not mistrustful; for the party
(With affection true and hearty)
Loveth you more dear then any,
Though there's profer'd choice of many.

Bacchus.

Bacchus. 94.

- 2 In your own power it doth lie
To work the thing effectually :
For your consent once being won,
The bus'ness is already done.
- 3 'Tis true, he loves you as the rest,
But knows not which he liketh best :
For he hath choice : to every one
He pretends love, but well loves none.
- 4 To people that can talk and prattle,
And (gossip-like) love twittle twattle ;
To raw young wits, and such as these,
Your company's good ; none else 'twill please.
- 5 One wife will not bring you to thy grave ;
For many wives y'are like to have :
Be careful then, look to your self,
And mix some love with worldly self.
- 6 You are a downright-dealing man,
That neither cog nor flatter can :
Therefore I tell you (to be short)
You are not fit to live at thy Court.
- 7 She will both handsome be, and rich ;
Therefore she'll seek to wear the witch :
For she's by nature very proud ;
To wealth and beauty that's allotted.
- 8 Perhaps you might with her bear sway,
But that a block lies in the way :
She drunkards hates ; you being one,
Must let the pot or her alone.
- 9 As yet the enmity is not
So strong, but it may be forgot :
But 'twill grow greater, if it be
Not stopt in time : make haste, agree.
- 10 Your wisdom and good parts approv'd,
Makes you be very well belov'd
Of thy Clergie, and all vertuous men :
Scarce such a man is found 'mongst ten.
- 11 Your warning's short ; you shall not need
Much patience : to speak truth indeed,
Thus 'tis observ'd (mark what I say)
You shall see what you love this day.
- 12 Thus brave Heroick honest deeds
Have in James garden sown such seeds,
That thou shalt soon preferred be,
And all thy friends shall joy in thee.

Medea.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Medea. 95.

2 N E'er think of change (sweet heart) for you
Shall have but one, I tell you true :
But such a husband he shall prove,
That you will live and die in love.

3 I f troth, the fates on thee do frown ;
For thou shalt have a churlish clown :
I'll nothing say thee to provoke ;
But in foul weather wear thy cloke.

4 T hy fortune's good, I prove it can ;
For thou an understanding man
Shalt have ; and one with whom always
Thou mayst live quiet all thy days.

5 B e of good chear, do not despair ;
Although she seemeth not to care
For thee at all ; yet do not doubt.
Old fire will not be soon put out.

6 T hou lovest him (sweet heart) I guess ;
And on his part I'll say no less :
You two are likely to agree :
Thou lovest him, and he loves thee.

7 A las, good man, thy case I mean ;
For thou art ty'd to such a one
That doth not love thee as she should :
I'll say no more, for fear she'll scold.

8 B e thou contented, honest lad ;
Choose a good wife, if to be had :
For one is all thy art like to marry,
And she till death with thee shall carry.

9 M ake haste (my friend) do not delay,
But marry, and carry her away :
For she's a housewife every inch,
Besides, she is a jealous wench.

10 Y our choice is good ; for she is such,
That speaks enough, but not too much :
Indeed, she's a well spoken woman,
With qualities that are not common.

11 I f you do conclude this match,
Henceforward you dispatch,
You shall wed, I'll mark what I say,
And upon an holy day.

12 M ake much of her, and love her dear ;
Her love to thee thou needst not fear :
For she is constant unto thee,
And so she will for ever be.

Tityrus.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Tityrus. 96.

2 You may (my friend) for ought I see,
A harrier or Horse-courser be :
For thus your fortune doth ordain,
By horse-flesh you shall get much gain.

3 Be rul'd by this advice I give,
And still observe this, while you live :
Keep your secrets from a punk,
And from a man that will be drunk.

4 Divers children you may have,
Which will soon go to the grave :
But the fates have thus contriv'd,
Onely one son shall be long liv'd.

5 Children you are like I have none ;
For you must have onely one ;
And that one will be so bad,
Whom you'll wish you'd never had.

6 Be thou happie in thy choice ;
Thou good cause hast to rejoyce :
For a young man true and kinde
To thy husband thou shalt finde.

7 Be not griev'd to lose his love ;
For if thou the truth couldest probe,
Thou wouldest never with him link :
He is worse then thou dost think.

8 Set heart, let thy thoughts at rest ;
Time will work all for the best :
Thou shalt have him, I dare say ;
But thou yet a while must stay.

9 Doubt him not ; for he is just ;
He rather moves for love then lust :
Thou of this mayst certain be,
He bears a constant love to thee.

10 Love requires love (by Reason's law)
One kindness doth another draw :
And you in spite of Fortune's blindness,
Shall be accepted for your kindness.

11 Thou shalt good utterance have with wives,
Three with thee shall lead their lives :
And thus from me resolve thy self,
The third of them will bring most pelf.

12 She's jealous of another,
Therefore love her (honest brother)
She will to no good be won ;
To speak plain, 'twill not be done.

Diana.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

2 Prospered and prosper : your Designe
Will come to pass, as I divine :
And, before much time expire,
You shall accomplish your desire.

3 Thou art much deceiv'd (my friend)
If thou any credit lend
To thy thoughts : full well I see,
What thou thinkest, will never be.

4 This dream (as probably I guess)
Signifies solitariness :
Then be so merry as you may,
And drive all dumpish thoughts away.

5 A Sweet presage your Fortune lends,
(That which I wish to all my friends)
A laudable end you'll make at last ;
Which Scene to act, let all forecast.

6 Your life you'll pass in joy and health,
Joyned with store of worldly pelf :
Then do not forget to render
Heartie thanks unto the Sender.

7 The things you lost, seem to forget ;
For Destinie hath laid a net:
And you (devoid of further care)
Shall have them ere you be aware.

8 Be of good comfort, mother milde;
For you the father of this childe ;
For it is lustie, sound, and strong,
And therefore likely to live long.

9 Be patient, honest woman, and
Thy husband's death's grief well withstand:
For death of him will make a laughter,
And thou must look to die soon after.

10 If thou be wise, this counsel take,
And of the same good profit make :
For it is good : do not dispute,
But with all speed it execute.

11 Conside not on this party : for
His tongue and thoughts do not concur :
Where one thing's spoke, another thought,
You needs must miss the mirth you sought.

12 Be thou a sculdier howsoever ;
For thou shalt prosper, never fear :
In war against thine enemy,
Thou shalt come off victoriously,

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Nymphæ. 98.

2 BE not deceiv'd (my friend) for you
Expect great welcom to ensue :
But you shall finde that friends will think;
You'll not be welcome as you think.

3 IDare say (my lad) that thou
Fain wouldst match thou car'st not how :
Whether it be to peace or strife,
Thou wouldst gladly get a wife.

4 YEs, have her if thou wilt : but know,
Ere about the match thou go,
Thou canst live no quiet life ;
For she will be a jealous wife.

5 If for shape and pulchritude
Thou dost seek, I thus conclude :
Thou shalt have a handsome girl,
With beauty fit to please an Earl.

6 If thou dost expect to have her,
For the purchase of her savor,
There's requir'd much cost and pains ;
First sit down, and cast the gains.

7 Tis true indeed, there's now great kindness,
But there is in friendship blindness :
The foundation is not strong,
Then the building can't last long.

8 Amongst those of the female sex,
(Maids, wives, and widows, all I'll mix)
You shall indifferent welcome finde,
But not according to your minde.

9 Around Constellation rains,
And unto you this lot remains :
For all your sorrows (I dare say)
You'll have much merriment this day.

10 If thou wouldst be preferr'd (young man)
Leave off thy wooing (if thou can)
A reason for't my judgement renders ;
This wooing the preferment hinders.

11 You may confide for certainty,
Upon this honest company :
From good, good springs ; and prob't you will,
This company is constant still.

12 Although't be long before (my friend)
You bring your wishes to an end ;
Be patient, and with toil and pain,
You shall your ends i'th' end obtain.

Orpheus.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Orpheus. 99.

2 SWart-heart, the man that's made for thee,
Will rather like a woman be :
He'll be a Cotqueant, on my credit :
When 't haps, remember that I sed it.

3 GOOD woman, set your heart at rest ;
You are with jealousie possess'd ;
And till that passion you subdue,
This man will ne'er concue with you.

4 ALthough the man be somewhat slack,
And in affection doth hang back :
To tell your gold his fingers itches,
And you may get him for your riches,

5 TAKE heed, before you go too far ;
For though he seem a fixed star,
Yet very easily he'll move ;
For he's inconstant in his love.

6 THY company's not fit for all ;
Thy welcome is most principal
Among young men, and people that
Love to be merry, laugh, and chat.

7 IDEY thee, lad, be n't vert at me ;
For I can't help thy destinie :
I do not judge thy course of life,
But th'art not fit to have a wife.

8 IF ever thou be i'th' minde to wed,
It must be whne drink's in thy head :
Then lov'st noz honest las's, noz punk,
Unless it be when thou art drunk.

9 THOU shalt a handsome las's obtain ;
I promise not much worldly gain :
Her beauty is a portion rich.
Ware horns : Does not thy forehead itch ?

10 THOU mayst presume never to fail ;
For in thy suit thou shalt prevail :
It is thy lot alone to have her ;
For thou art greatly in her favor.

11 FEAR not, my lad, to have this las's ;
For certainly none ever was
So far enamour'd on a man :
She'll do, to have thee, all she can.

12 THOU art so clownish and so rude,
That 'tis but folly to intrude
To womens presence : they contemn
Thy company, 'cause thou lov'st not them.

Mercutio.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Mercurius. 100.

2 If thou a trustie friend canst finde,
Then unto him disclose thy minde :
Two heads (they say) are better then one ;
Then trust not thine own skill alone.

3 Be not afraid that you shall not
Have any children : for your lot
Is to have three, nor more nor less :
This to be true, you shall confess.

4 Sweet-heart, the fates favour you much ;
You'll have a husband that hath such
Rare wit, and qualities so sweet,
For any good thing he'll be meet.

5 Thy fortune is kinde lasse, to have
One that shall be a souldier brave.
Resolve thy self before thou marry,
If thou a knapsack well canst carry.

6 Marry him (woman) if thou can ;
He's a good loving merry man :
He'll laugh away all idle folly ;
For mirth's better then melancholy.

7 You might perhaps the man obtain,
But thy loss is better then the gain :
For without doubt believe't for true,
He loves another better then you.

8 You love the party well, I know ;
The party loveth you also :
But here's the difference, in few hours,
You'll finde it not so firm as yours.

9 Thy vertues that transcendent be,
Thy prudence and humanitie,
Makes every one to love thee well :
Thus Vertue doth twist Honour dwell.

10 Thou shalt, my friend, twice married be,
And widower twice (take this from me)
For thou shalt surely have two wives,
And neither of them shall live long lives.

11 Her love's more slippery then an Eel ;
How at the heart, anon at thy heel :
Be wise, my friend, let her alone ;
She falls in love with every one.

12 Thirst good and bad your chance is put ;
A rich wife, but an arrant slut :
And yet to marry her be n't afraid ;
Money will hire a cleanly maid.

Mars.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Mars. 101.

- 2 Y Du are so impudent and bold ;
Deny it not ; all's true here told :
I will from preferment keep you long ;
Then blame your self for your own wrong.
- 3 A Though great friendship seemeth yet,
Unto the same a date is set :
It will all turn to hate i' th' end,
And one will 'gainst another bend.
- 4 B E patient ; don't despair at all,
And in the end mark what will fall :
Before a little time expire,
You shall attain to your desire.
- 5 L Et not thy thoughts delude thee, friend ;
For if thereon thou dost depend,
Thy hopes are vain, and short will shrink :
I will not all be as thou dost think.
- 6 T his dream great loss and detriment
Seems to include in its portent :
And when the matter comes to trial,
You'll finde 'twill chance some great denial.
- 7 Y Du were not born in a happie hour ;
The fates upon you seem to lourge :
Look to't, I tell you as a friend,
You are like to make a heavie end.
- 8 T hy time of life will have long date,
But seldom in a happie state :
For thou shalt pass from th' night to th' morrow,
Almost in a continual sorrow.
- 9 T here is no cause of grief at all ;
If any, yet 'twill be but small :
And therefore do you not complain ;
For, what you lost, you'll get again.
- 10 L Et not the parents much lament,
But arm themselves with sweet content :
By my conjecture it appears,
This childe at th' most lives but eight years.
- 11 U p to the husband and the wife,
The Destinies do give long life :
They very long shall live together,
And at one time like flowers shall wither.
- 12 T hee hee (my friend) and be not mad ;
For if you follow that counsel bad,
It will no good luck to you bring,
Nor will you thrive in any thing.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Flora. 102.

2 If troth (sweet-heart) I pity thee;
Thou lov'st a man too well: for he
In time of need from thee will shrink:
He loves thee not as thou dost think.

3 To merri ment thou art inclin'd,
And 'tis by fate to thee assign'd,
That thou wilt chiefly welcome be
To people that love mirth and glee.

4 Thou shalt but one wife have alone,
And that thou'lt think too many by one:
She shall be rich (indeed) but old,
And, which is worse, an arrant scold.

5 Be wise, go forward in thy choice,
And thou shalt have cause to rejoyce:
She's a good housewife, be thou sure,
And one that will thy weal procure.

6 Be not thou vert at Fortune's lot;
For, being blinde, she seeth not:
A witte she'll give thee (mark it right)
When thou shalt finde a grain too light.

7 She is perfect true in minde;
She unto thee seems very kinde:
But learn, my friend, as light to set her;
For sure she loves another better.

8 Be not too hastie, have a care,
And of this creature be aware:
For if thou have her, she to thee
Will prove an angry stringing Bee.

9 You'll be a man employed much,
Your worthy qualities are such:
In Councel, State, and such affairs,
You'll end your date of worldly cares.

10 This day seems to portend for you
A journey: say, friend, is't not true?
Do not deny't; for 'tis most right;
Thou'lt walk somewhere 'twixt this and night.

11 Preferment follows at thy heel,
As by experience thou shalt feel:
My Art, which hath but seldom err'd,
Says thou shalt quickly be preferr'd.

12 Be not too confident (good friend)
This company doth love pretend:
But I advise thee, do not trust
Them; for they'll be to thee unjust.

Pan.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Pan. 103.

2 She shall be young, and rich withal,
But her stock of vertues small:
Thou'lt with thy self devoid of life,
Rather then live with such a wife.

3 Honest man, be rul'd by me,
Trust her not too much; for she
Seems to love, but the conclusion
Will prove all but meer delusion.

4 Be not daunted, but persist,
Though thou finde not as thou list;
Tremble not thy self with fear,
Yet thou mayst come somewhat near.

5 If the Proverb do not mock,
Thou wert wrapt in the mothers smock;
For thou art (as I do finde)
Well belov'd 'mongst women-kinde.

6 Vatsoe'er may be the cause,
Thou canst tell with little pause;
Be it what it can or may,
This is to thee a merry day.

7 Tis pity but he had his right;
For he is a worthy wight:
He from vertues rule ne'er swerves;
Great preferment he deserves.

8 Make much of this good company;
For thou shalt be sure thereby
To arise (say that I sed it)
Unto friendship, wealth, and credit.

9 Your pleasant affability,
Join'd with liberality,
For a certain 'twill you bring
To obtain the wished thing.

10 Trouble not thy self in vain,
Dye such fancies from thy brain;
For I truly tell to thee,
What thou thinkst, will never be.

11 Be not troubled at this dream;
Entertain no thoughts extream:
For 'tis to be understood,
That this dream portends your good.

12 The end, if good, 's the crown of all;
If bad, of evils principal:
This chance can nought but good portend;
A loving person brings the end.

Solon,

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Solon. 104.

2 TO two (my friend) 'tis almost folly,
By reason of your melancholy :
For be assur'd of this, that no man
That's so, is car'd for by a woman.

3 Here is a chance of merchandise,
Of a chapman's exercise :
Be sure, this day you'll prosper well,
If you do either buy or sell.

4 If thou wouldst preferment have,
Leave the pot (thou drunken knave)
This experience proveth plain,
A drunkard can small credit gain.

5 Be not afraid, nor scruple take,
These companions thine to make :
For I (truly) testifie
That 'tis no bad company.

6 If the thing you wish't obtain,
Were but possible to gain,
You might (nay more, you should) achieve it :
But it's impossible ; then leave it.

7 T'is but folly to expect
What never will take effect :
Fortune will not so't agree :
To speak plain, this cannot be.

8 T'was a dream : well, let that pass ;
But, whate'er the meaning was,
Try if fate may be withstood ;
For to you it breeds no good.

9 T'is hastie hurrying I like not ;
Fair and softly, be n't too hot :
For I tell thee as a friend,
I will bring thee to an untimely end.

10 If to thirty you arrive,
When the fates do thus contrive,
That you may live longer yet :
O'er that stile you'll hardly get.

11 Spare thy labour and thy cost,
For the thing that thou hast lost :
Do not call good after bad ;
For the thing will ne'er be had.

12 T'is is a lustie healthful heart,
And will live long (from truth I learn :)
Of sciences among the rest,
It will Husick love the best.

Arion.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Arion. 105.

2 Trouble not thy self in vain;
For her love thou shalt not gain:
Though she'll kiss and toy, yet she
Doth not care a far for thee.

3 As god woman, ill's your lot;
An unkind husband have you got:
And let me give the devil his due;
He loves your money better than you.

4 Swearst thou art so blithe or bold,
If thou wilt hear thy fortune told,
Be not abash't, nor swear nor stamp;
Thou art onely fit to follow the Camp.

5 Take heed unto thy self this day,
And be advis'd by what I say:
For you will meet with some distaste,
If it be not prevented by forecast.

6 Look not yet to debate
Thy self by strength of worldly state:
Fortune will grant at last thy ban,
Yet thou wilt prefer that very soon.

7 I were well for thee, thy hopes were stronger,
If this good company might last longer;
Unto thy profit should arise:
Make use of time, I thee advise.

8 If you do desire a thing
Possible to pass to bring,
It may and shall be brought to effect,
Even as you do expect.

9 What you now do think upon,
Do not look for it anon:
But be sure it will come to effect,
If your self don't it neglect.

10 Trouble not thy minde at all.
What may from thy dream befall:
For 'tis worth no estimation:
Drive it from thy imagination.

11 If thou knowest thy self aright,
Thou art in a happy plight,
And hast cause to be full glad:
Better fortune can't be had.

12 You shall unto old age arrive,
And in all temporal substance thrive:
In honour, riches bravely got,
You'll end your life; such is your lot.

• Cupid.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Cupid. 106.

This is a day of days to thee ;
For it a happie day will be :
Fortune (it saies) is fully bent
This day to give thee hearts content.

The learning and apt promptitude
Wherewith thou amply art indu'd,
Unto preferment will thee raise.
Learn thou to give the Giver praise.

The company that thou dost keep
Is of an apprehension deep :
Then if with credit you'll keep touch,
Indeed you must bear with it much.

To diligence you are inclin'd ;
Therefore what you conceive in minde,
You through that vertue shall attain :
Look after it, 'tis worth your pain.

If thy thoughts soar not too hie,
But be stay'd by modestie ;
Then the thing to pass will come,
Or else not. This is my doom.

Look to thy self, and be in doubt
With thy neighbours to fall out ;
For the purport of this dream
Is enmity and hate extreme.

Thou shalt in honour live and die,
And i' th' face of thine enemy ;
In war thou shalt thy date expire ;
A death (for honour) no death higher.

Prudence and other vertues rare,
Wherewith you amply furnish'd are,
Have purchas'd to you (bold of strife)
Both riches and long term of life.

Leave off thy toll (sweet heart) be quiet ;
He's not appointed for thy diet ;
For all thy love, thy care, and pain
(To say the truth) is all in vain.

Good fortune doth this child attend ;
It will be long time ere his life end :
Besides, it shall much riches gather,
To glad the mother, joy the father.

If inde it right, and 'twill be so ;
Let neither of them grieve for't tho :
The wife will die before her mate,
For certain thus I calculate.

Teuclion.

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Teuclion. 107.

2 Fear not to enter on her, man,
But wed so soon as e'er thou can:
For she'll be to thee (all her life)
A constant, loving, honest wife.

3 Fortune leaues smiling upon you,
And loves you dearly (to say true :)
For friendly welcome she affords
To you, mongst Princes and great Lords.

4 This day boords neither blis nor bale;
Betwixt them you may safely sail:
'Tis a strange chance as can be had;
For thou needst fear no good nor bad.

5 Thou speakest fair, and hop'st thereby,
Thy feigned words and flattery,
The object of thy wish to attain;
Yet all thy glossing is in vain.

6 See, and in seeing heedfully
Thou may'st obserue this company:
They faithful are, and worthy trust;
For all their words and deeds are just.

7 Be not too rash in giving o're;
For thou must wait a little more:
And thou by leasure shalt aspire
Unto the height of thy desire.

8 Cast not away thy hope, my friend,
But patiently expect the end;
And with a little patient pain,
Thou shalt attaine unto thy gain.

9 By this dream which you have had,
The issues will be but bad:
Some great sickness will ensue;
Patience is best ease for you.

10 Thy fortune's very hard and ill:
For I tell thee by my skill,
That thou shalt ere thy life end,
Be forsaken of all friends.

11 Thou wilt not grow very aged:
(For this truth my skill's engaged)
For much honour shalt thou get.
Thus thy destiny is set.

12 What you lost, be sure of this,
Blame me if I say amiss:
You shall very shortly know
Where they be: no more but so,

The Dutch Fortune-teller.

Satyr. 108.

1 She is not very handsome, I confess,
Yet I advise thee t'have her ne'ertheless:
She's truly honest, that's without dispute,
And one that to thy humour well will suite.

2 Thy fortune's good in choice; for thou
Shalt that saying disallow,
Can she be false and honest too?
Yes; one who is so, is thy due.

3 Trust her not (my friend) for she
Is not what she seems to be:
She's a false dissembling slut.
How thou art warn'd, in time look to't.

4 Thou thinkest she loves thee; but thou art
Very much deceiv'd (good heart)
She's a subtil cunning dabb,
And loves thee as she loves a crab.

5 Look not at all welcom to be,
Wongst any of the best degree:
Thou maist have entertainment there,
Wongst common people and husbandmen.

6 Wouldst know what will befall this day?
Then pry thee list to what I say:
Lay by a groat against to morrow;
For thou'lt ride out all the day thozow.

7 Thou maist preferment get ere long;
But say, Gamericke fltering tongue:
Thewt is thy skill; yet 'tis no boot
To say I haue thee; thou wilt do't.

8 The company you need not dread;
By their instructions be you led:
Believe me, friend I speak no fable,
This company may be profitable.

9 Usto your wish a period set;
Yet cause I tell you, do not fret:
You desire a thing in vain;
For you shall never it obtain.

10 Think upon the thing no more;
For thou no reason hast therefore:
'Tis time ill spent, I say to thee;
For what thou thinkest, will never be.

11 Be wary in your ways (my friend)
And do nothing but to good end:
For this your dream, I tell you true,
Doth tends some great mischance to you.

FINIS.
